THE COWLITZ INDIAN TRIBE

Compact Hearing

Patty Kinswa-Gaiser,
Chair of The Cowlitz Indian Tribe

The Cowlitz Indian Tribe History

Facts

- The Cowlitz Indian Tribe once encompassed 3,000 sq. miles of Southwest Washington
- The Cowlitz Tribe has almost 5000 members and relies on gaming revenues and grants to provide services

Timeline

- 1854 – The federal government proposed a reservation for the Cowlitz Indian Tribe about six miles east of the Tribe's casino site
- 1855 – In treaty negotiations, the United States tried to persuade the Tribe to relocate to the Olympic Peninsula. The Tribe refused to leave
- 1863 – The Tribe's land was opened to non-Indian settlement by Executive Order
- 2000 – The Tribe reestablished its federal recognition
- June 16, 2014 – Governor Inslee signed the Cowlitz Tribe's gaming compact
- 2015 – The Tribe's application to establish a Reservation and obtain trust lands in Clark County was approved
- April 24, 2017 – The Tribe's casino, ilani, opened its door to the public
- April 24, 2023 – The Tribe added a hotel to the casino property

Programs & Services

- Health Services programs providing medical, mental health and substance abuse services to Native Americans in Western Washington at three sites (Vancouver, Longview and Tukwila).
- Education Department provides tuition assistance available to tribal members.
- Youth Services programs including camps, gatherings and classes on tribal history and culture.
- Housing Department assistance for low-income Tribal members through programs including services for renters and homeowners and Elder's apartments.
- Natural Resources programs work with Tribal and non-Tribal governments to conserve and restore culturally-relevant species and landscapes integral to the Cowlitz People.

Programs & Services, Continued

- Transportation Department provides trips to medical appointments, shopping and social gatherings for the disabled, low income, or those without transportation within our service area.
- Cultural Resources Department maintains and restores the Tribe's culture, language, and history. Major activities include the Canoe journey, the annual Pow-wow, and the Tribal Drum Group.
- Elders Program assists tribal elders in maintaining quality of life, including meals, transportation, housing assistance and health services.

Community Impact

- The Cowlitz Indian Tribe contributed millions to our local community:
 - $48,000,000 in total compact and ordinance fees since 2017
 - $40,000,000 spent on upgrading the I-5 interchange
 - $15,000,000 spent on a Water Treatment facility for the reservation
 - $4,500,000 spent on a sewer expansion for the City of La Center
- In addition to millions donated through the Cowlitz Indian Tribe's various funds, since its inception, ilani has directly contributed more than $3,200,000 to charitable causes in the region.
